

A number of Boone County Sheriff's department detectives raked through a small area at a time searching for a head, arms, hands, etc belonging to a Walton man at the Rumpke Landfill in Pendleton County for most of the day on Tuesday, January 15. However they were unable to find any of the body parts.

New public service announcement warns parents about the signs of heroin abuse

Prescription pill misuse often leads to abuse of heroin, other illicit drugs

Pendleton County has its share of losing many young people to Heroin overdose. A drug problem that has exploded out of control.

Attorney General Jack Conway and the Kentucky Office of Drug Control Policy have jointly released a public service announcement (PSA) to increase awareness of heroin abuse among young people and to warn their parents of the signs.

The 30-second PSA <http://youtu.be/leznM7P2O0g> depicts a young woman in a morgue who describes how easy it has been to hide her heroin habit from her parents - that is until she becomes an overdose victim.

"This short PSA sends an important message to parents and teens across Kentucky," General Conway said. "Don't overlook the signs of heroin use. Missing prescription pills, valuables and lost appetite are all signs that your child may be abusing heroin, prescription pills or other illicit drugs. Ignoring the signs could mean a lifetime of heartache."

The PSA, produced by the Nassau County, NY District Attorney's Office, being distributed to television stations across Kentucky along with other drug abuse prevention videos, including the winning Keep Kentucky Kids Safe prescription drug abuse prevention PSA produced by members of the Clark County High School ASAP Youth Network <http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=QbZL75z3iOo>.

Detectives dig for body parts of slain Walton teen

Little did 19-year-old Daniel Delfin of Walton know when he got into a vehicle with three men on January 9 that it would be a fatal mistake.

His torso and a leg were later found in a field near a barn on Messmer Road in Walton on Monday evening, January 14. His sister had reported him missing on Sunday, January 13.

"As detectives were searching for Delfin on Monday they received a tip that these three men might know something about his disappearance," said Tom Scheben, a spokesman for the Boone County Sheriff's office. After questioning them, the three men were arrested on Tuesday, January 15. Jeffrey Allen, 21, Verona; Anthony Baumgartner, 23, Florence; and Stephen Harkness, 22, of Verona; were lodged in the Boone County Detention Center. All three men have been charged with murder, kidnapping, abuse of a corpse and tampering with physical evidence.

They appeared in Boone County District Court on Thursday, January 17 where a judge bound them over to the grand jury. All three were denied bond.

Delfin was not a stranger to Pendleton County. He had local ties to people in the community and was known to stay over night on occasion.

DANIEL DELFIN

Delfin was a known heroin dealer and had previously been arrested on drug charges.

Scheben said the three men told authorities that they just wanted to "rid the world of the evil in it."

According to police, the men acted like they wanted to buy drugs from Delfin. They met with him and then kidnapped, beat, murdered and dismembered him. A machete and possibly an electric saw were used to cut up the man's body.

One of the men told police that they put his head, arms and feet in a garbage bag and dropped it in a dumpster near a Super 8 Motel on Dream Street in Florence. Rumpke picked the dumpster up and brought it to their landfill in Butler.

A number of Boone County Detectives were at the Rumpke Landfill located at 1374 Bryan Griffin Road, Butler, in Pendleton County on Tuesday, January 15, 2013 searching for the missing body parts. They searched the area where the truck had unloaded using loaders and excavating equipment. Loads of trash were taken from a specific area to a clearing where the detectives then sifted through the debris looking for clues and/or any remains of Delphin. After a thorough search the recovery efforts were called off.

Although authorities did not need the other parts to make a positive identification, they searched in order to help provide some closure to the family. Delfin's clothing, a tattoo, size and weight were enough to know who the victim was as well as the fact that the three men involved in the grisly murder named him.

Two of the three men involved in the slaying had military backgrounds. Both Harkness and Allen had served in the Marines. Harkness enlisted in July of 2009 and had been deployed to Afghanistan for a short period of time. He separated from the Marines in January 2012. Allen enlisted in March 2011 but was never deployed overseas. According to reports, it's believed he received a dishonorable discharge in October of 2012. The men earned several medals between the two.

Anthony Baumgartner was the only one of the three that had a criminal record. One month after his 18th birthday in 2007, he was arrested in Campbell County for possession of cocaine, possession of an unspecified drug and possession of

Man of many talents opens Pictures Plus gallery in Falmouth

By Debbie Dennie, Editor

Bryan Gibson is not your average Joe. This guy is a multi-talented artist. It doesn't take long in looking around his gallery to know he loves art. Not just art, such as paintings, but art in many forms and variations.

He does some beautiful matting and framing work and has over 800 samples of mat board and frame samples for any size piece. Besides that he has a catalog of some 5000 posters available in his new gallery he has opened in Falmouth. His business is located at 1308 W. Shelby Street in the Wyatt Riverside Shops, Pictures Plus, a professional custom framing business and more.

Bryan has been around and worked in the art field for some 30 years, mostly in the tri-state area. He worked 16 years with the number one art retailer in the nation and only left when the bottom dropped out of the economy in 2008.

"I come from a family of woodworkers," he said. "I've always wanted to do things with my hands." His artistic ability does not stop with his matting and framing business. He has photos of metal works pieces he's created, unique lighted pedestals, stained glass work, and he makes molding and uses the scrap pieces of the molding to make jewelry boxes, and many other items he's made along the way.

In one corner of his gallery he built a "Wishing Well" out of cinder block that he painted, used a liner and behind it is some metal wrought iron. "The sound of that the water makes it a peaceful place to browse and look at various pieces or pick out a frame.

"My motto is as he chuckled, "What Can We Frame For You Today?" You can frame just about anything. Bryan says he's framed swords, knives, guns, uniforms and created shadow boxes. "Get those antique christening dresses out that belonged to your grandmother or great-grandmother, crocheted hankies and frame them for your family and friends to enjoy," he said.

He will be framing the paintings and photos to go in the new Pendleton County Library.

With his Pictures Plus business, he is doing the work he loves and he has gone one step further to open his gallery up to other artists in Pendleton County. He's looking for a variety of art, such as some needlepoint works, woodwork items, metal works sculptures, and pottery.

At present he has some chainmail pieces, necklaces, earrings, and bracelet jewelry made by Bardic Kitty. You can checkout her website at www.bardickitty.com.

There are some beautiful paintings done by Virgil Rarrick Jr. of Falmouth hanging in his gallery.

Pendleton County Schools earn ENERGY STAR

Pendleton County High School, Philip Sharp Middle School, Southern Elementary and Northern Elementary Schools were recognized by the Kentucky Energy and Environment Cabinet for earning the prestigious ENERGY STAR, a national symbol for protecting the environment through superior energy performance. The district-wide energy savings ranks Pendleton County schools in the top 25 percent of similar buildings nationally and garners the distinction of ENERGY STAR Leader.

Certificates signed by Gov. Steve Beshear were presented to Pendleton County Superintendent, Anthony Strong, during the Jan. 17 local board of education meeting that included representatives from the Kentucky School Boards Association, school principals, teachers, students and district leaders.

"Pendleton County Schools is pleased to be named an EPA ENERGY STAR Leader," said school superintendent Strong. "Through this achievement, we have demonstrated what can be done with proactive energy management, school leadership, and teachers who engage students in energy conservation. Our energy manager, Nathan Wright, has been instrumental in all four Pendleton County schools earning the ENERGY STAR label and the district's recognition as an ENERGY STAR Leader."

Throughout the past two years, Pendleton County has

Corvette Museum raises money for Trooper Island Camp

It's not every day that you see a corvette chasing a Kentucky State Police cruiser, but that is exactly what happened recently as part of a unique fundraiser developed by the Corvette Museum. The "1-Lap of Kentucky" programs are popular touring events that quickly sell out to Corvette enthusiasts. As a part of the National Corvette Museum in Motion program, the 1-Lap tour raises money for both the museum and Trooper Island, a Kentucky State Police non-profit camp for underprivileged children.

"This is our third year of doing the Corvette Tour," says Kentucky State Police Commissioner Rodney Brewer. "Each year we have visited a different region of the commonwealth. We're proud of the Bluegrass and enjoy showing it off to visitors."

Previous tours have visited the Land Between the Lakes and Owensboro, the Bourbon Trail and Horse Country, and most recently explored eastern Kentucky for a trip through the mining camps, Trooper Island and the Kentucky Artisan Center in Berea. "We're planning three tours next year," says Museum Events Manager Roc Linkov. "From this unique partnership we get to have a meaningful and fun event that provides underprivileged children with a fun and meaningful event of their own. That is a great thing."

On Wednesday, December 5, 2012 Roc Linkov presented a check for $11,000 to Kentucky State Police Commissioner Rodney Brewer. In turn, Trooper Island Camp Director Sgt. Craig Sutton presented Museum Executive Director Wendell Strode and Museum Events Associate Karen Renfrow with a plaque from the KSP in honor of the NCM's participation in this worthwhile effort.

While the event typically involves a large number of Corvettes, all makes and models of vehicles are welcome. Next year's event will highlight Kentucky's "Only One" attractions... all the great places and things Kentucky has that exist nowhere else in the world. To learn more about next year's 1-Lap of Kentucky event, visit the Museum's website at <http://www.corvettemuseum.org/registration/one-lap/info.shtml>. Registration for the tours will open late spring 2013.

For more information about Trooper Island Camp, you can check out their website at <http://www.kentuckystatepolice.org/island.htm>.

Tabatha Flannery earns GED

The Pendleton County Adult Learning Center would like to congratulate recent GED graduate Tabatha Flannery.

Tabatha came into the learning center seeking classes that would help her brush up on her math skills so that she would feel confident she would pass the GED test. Within a couple of months, Tabatha was test ready and took the GED. She passed with great scores and can now decide what career path she would like to follow.

Congratulations Tabatha! Everyone is so proud of you for your hard work, dedication, determination, and great spirit when tackling a goal that will open many doors for you with regards to education and career. Best of luck in anything you do.

If you would like to find out about getting your GED and the vast amount of options we have with regards to class scheduling, please call the PC Adult Learning Center at (859) 654-3325 ext. 2603. Coming soon: Weekend classes!! Call now for information.

Karen Davis Homemakers meet

The January meeting was held at the home of Gary and Darlene Simpson.

After the devotional, a blessing and meal was had. The meeting was called to order by President Mary Lou Johnson. The reading of the minutes was done by secretary Faye Godman and the financial report by Helen Strasser. Denise Fisher gave a 4-H report. She is very busy helping young people and teaching them to sew and other things. Recipe for Life was a great success as was the South Family Resource Center Christmas for Children program. The lesson for this month was "Coffee with Rhonda".

Next month's meeting will be held at Dinah Shelley's house at 6:30 p.m. on February 11.

The homemakers want to keep Dinah's brother Peter Diamond in their prayers as he was recently diagnosed with cancer in a couple of places.

The lesson next month will be Kentucky vacations in your own backyard. See you then.

Fund raisers being held to support Tarhe Sports & Learning Center

Fund raisers are being held in an effort to help a local non-profit business here in Falmouth.

Danny (Hyper Bald Guy) Plyler founded Tarhe Sports & Learning Center seven years ago to help work with at risk and under privileged children in the community. They help mold and change the lives of children everyday. They give kids confidence, teach them good eating and exercising habits, help guide them to God, tutor those who are struggling in school, and help them to better choices in life. They are a non-profit organization and need the community's assistance to remain open.

HIGHLIGHTS

Martin Luther King Jr. the conscience of a generation that changed America through the power of love

Martin Luther King, Jr. (January 15, 1929 – April 4, 1968) was an American clergyman, activist, and prominent leader in the African-American Civil Rights Movement. He is best known for his role in the advancement of civil rights using nonviolent civil disobedience. King has become a national icon in the history of American progressivism.

A Baptist minister, King became a civil rights activist early in his career. He led the 1955 Montgomery Bus Boycott and helped found the Southern Christian Leadership Conference (SCLC) in 1957, serving as its first president. King's efforts led to the 1963 March on Washington, where King delivered his "I Have a Dream" speech. There, he established his reputation as one of the greatest orators in American history. He also established his reputation as a radical, and became an object of the Federal Bureau of Investigation's COINTELPRO for the rest of his life.

On October 14, 1964, King received the Nobel Peace Prize for combating racial inequality through nonviolence. In the next few years leading up to his death, he expanded his focus to include poverty and the Vietnam War—alienating many of his liberal allies with a 1967 speech titled "Beyond Vietnam." King was planning a national occupation of Washington, D.C., called the Poor People's Campaign.

King was assassinated on April 4, 1968, in Memphis, Tennessee. He was posthumously awarded the Presidential Medal of Freedom in 1977 and Congressional Gold Medal in 2004; Martin Luther King, Jr. Day was established as a U.S. federal holiday in 1986. Hundreds of streets in the U.S. and beyond have been renamed in his honor.

Civil rights leader, theologian, and educator Howard Thurman was an early influence on King. A classmate of King's father at Morehouse College, Thurman mentored the young King and his friends. Thurman's missionary work had taken him abroad where he had met and conferred with Mahatma Gandhi. When he was a student at Boston University, King often visited Thurman, who was the dean of Marsh Chapel. Walter Fluker, who has studied Thurman's writings, has stated, "I don't believe you'd get a Martin Luther King, Jr. without a Howard Thurman."

With assistance from the Quaker group the American Friends Service Committee, and inspired by Gandhi's success with non-violent activism, King visited Gandhi's birthplace in India in 1959. The trip to India affected King in a profound way, deepening his understanding of non-violent resistance and his commitment to America's struggle for civil rights. In a radio address made during his final evening in India, King reflected, "Since being in India, I am more convinced than ever before that the method of nonviolent resistance is the most potent weapon available to oppressed people in their struggle for justice and human dignity. In a real sense, Mahatma Gandhi embodied in his life certain universal principles that are inherent in the moral structure of the universe, and these principles are as inescapable as the law of gravitation."

As the leader of the SCLC, King maintained a policy of not publicly endorsing a U.S. political party or candidate: "I feel someone must remain in the position of non-alignment, so that he can look objectively at both parties and be the conscience of both—not the servant or master of either."

On December 1, 1955, Rosa Parks was arrested for refusing to give up her seat. The Montgomery Bus Boycott led by King soon followed. The boycott lasted for 385 days, and the situation became so tense that King's house was bombed. King was arrested during this campaign, which ended with a United States District Court ruling in Browder v. Gayle that ended racial segregation on all Montgomery public buses.

In 1957, King, Ralph Abernathy, and other civil rights activists founded the Southern Christian Leadership Conference (SCLC). The group was created to harness the moral authority and organizing power of black churches to conduct non-violent protests in the service of civil rights reform. King led the SCLC until his death.

King organized and led marches for blacks' right to vote, desegregation, labor rights and other basic civil rights. Most of these rights were successfully enacted into the law of the United States with the passage of the Civil Rights Act of 1964 and the 1965 Voting Rights Act.

King and the SCLC put into practice many of the principles of the Christian Left and applied the tactics of nonviolent protest with great success by strategically choosing the method of protest and the places in which protests were carried out. There were often dramatic stand-offs with segregationist authorities. Sometimes these confrontations turned violent.

In December 1964, King and the SCLC joined forces with the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee (SNCC) in Selma, Alabama, where SNCC had been working on voter registration for several months. A local judge issued an injunction that barred any gathering of three or more people affiliated with the SNCC, SCLC, DCVL, or any of 41 named civil rights leaders. This injunction temporarily halted civil rights activity until King defied it by speaking at Brown Chapel on January 2, 1965.

King is most famous for his "I Have a Dream" speech, given in front of the Lincoln Memorial during the 1963 March on Washington for Jobs and Freedom.

The march originally was conceived as an event to dramatize the desperate condition of blacks in the southern U.S. and an opportunity to place organizers' concerns and grievances squarely before the seat of power in the nation's capital. Organizers intended to denounce the federal government for its failure to safeguard the civil rights and physical safety of civil rights workers and blacks. However, the group acquiesced to presidential pressure and influence, and the event ultimately took on a far less strident tone. As a result, some civil rights activists felt it presented an inaccurate, sanitized pageant of racial harmony; Malcolm X called it the "Farce on Washington", and the Nation of Islam forbade its members from attending the march.

More than a quarter of a million people of diverse ethnicities attended the event, sprawling from the steps of the Lincoln Memorial onto the National Mall and around the reflecting pool. At the time, it was the largest gathering of protesters in Washington, D.C.'s history.

King delivered a 17-minute speech, later known as "I Have a Dream", into an oasis of freedom and justice. "I Have a Dream" came to be regarded as one of the finest speeches in the history of American oratory. The March, and especially King's speech, helped put civil rights at the top of the liberal political agenda in the United States and facilitated passage of the Civil Rights Act of 1964.

On March 29, 1968, King went to Memphis, Tennessee, in support of the black sanitary public works employees, represented by AFSCME Local 1733, who had been on strike since March 12 for higher wages and better treatment. On April 3, King addressed a rally and delivered his "I've Been to the Mountaintop" address at Mason Temple, the world headquarters of the Church of God in Christ. King's flight to Memphis had been delayed by a bomb threat against his plane. In the close of the last speech of his career, in reference to the bomb threat, King said the following:

And then I got to Memphis. And some began to say the threats, or talk about the threats that were out. What would happen to me from some of our sick white brothers? Well, I don't know what will happen now. We've got some difficult days ahead. But it doesn't matter with me now. Because I've been to the mountaintop. And I don't mind. Like anybody, I would like to live a long life. Longevity has its place. But I'm not concerned about that now. I just want to do God's will. And He's allowed me to go up to the mountain. And I've looked over. And I've seen the promised land. I may not get there with you. But I want you to know tonight, that we, as a people, will get to the promised land. So I'm happy, tonight. I'm not worried about anything. I'm not fearing any man. Mine eyes have seen the glory of the coming of the Lord.

President Lyndon B. Johnson declared April 7 a national day of mourning for the civil rights leader. Vice-president Hubert Humphrey attended King's funeral on behalf of the president, as there were fears that Johnson's presence might incite protests and perhaps violence. At his widow's request, King's last sermon at Ebenezer Baptist Church was played at the funeral, a recording of his "Drum Major" sermon, given on February 4, 1968. In that sermon, King made a request that at his funeral no mention of his awards and honors be made, but that it be said that he tried to "feed the hungry," "clothe the naked," "be right on the [Vietnam] war question," and "love and serve humanity." His good friend Mahalia Jackson sang his favorite hymn, "Take My Hand, Precious Lord", at the funeral.

Better late than never when it comes to winterizing a car

The last thing any driver needs is a vehicle that breaks down in cold, harsh winter weather. It's not too late to have your vehicle checked, saving you from the cost and hassle of unexpected emergency repairs when severe weather strikes.

- Battery - Keep the battery connections clean, tight and corrosion-free. Batteries don't always give warning signs before they fail completely so it's wise to replace batteries that are more than three years old.
- Antifreeze - Antifreeze (coolant) should be flushed and refilled at least every two years in most vehicles. As a reminder, do not add 100 percent antifreeze as full-strength antifreeze actually has a lower freeze point than when mixed with water.
- Brakes - Have the brakes checked. The braking system is the vehicle's most important safety item and is key while driving on icy or snow-covered roads.

- Tires - Check the tire tread depth and tire pressure. If snow and ice are a problem in your area, consider special tires designed to grip slick roads. During winter, tire pressure should be checked weekly as tires will lose pressure when temperatures drop.
- Oil - Be diligent about changing the oil and filter at recommended intervals. Dirty oil can spell trouble in winter. Consider changing to low-viscosity oil in winter, as it will flow more easily between moving parts when cold.
- Wiper Blades - Cold weather can affect the life of windshield wipers. Wiper blades that are cracked or torn, or that chatter, streak and don't properly clean your windshield, should be changed. Check the windshield washer reservoir in case it needs fluid.

- Be sure to keep your vehicle's gas tank at least half full as that decreases the chances of moisture forming in the gas lines and possibly freezing. If you're due for a tune-up, consider having it done as winter weather magnifies existing problems such as pings, hard starts, sluggish performance or rough idling. High school seniors advised to file financial aid paperwork

The Kentucky Higher Education Assistance Authority is recommending that high school seniors who plan to further their education at a college or technical school this fall complete the application for financial aid as soon as possible in January. Continuing college students will need to file an update of information filed in previous year.

The application is known as the FAFSA (Free Application for Federal Student Aid). The information from this paperwork determines whether a student qualifies for aid in the form of federal and state grants, work - studies, and federal student loans.

Some colleges also award their own grants and scholarships based on information contained in the FAFSA.

It is recommended that the FAFSA be completed online at www.fafsa.gov but a paper form is available upon request by calling 1-800 - 4 - Fed - Aid.

An application worksheet and helpful tips packet with a list of necessary financial documents is available in the guidance office at Pendleton County High School.

On January 23 there will be a FAFSA Workshop in the main computer lab at Pendleton County High School to assist students and parents in submitting the online application.

Come any time between the hours of 4 and 7 p.m. Participants are encouraged to complete as much of the worksheet as possible prior to the event and bring supporting financial documents for reference. Several professionals will be on hand to assist you that evening.

Sharp Middle School students to perform Annie, Jr.

A talented group of Phillip A. Sharp Middle School students have been practicing almost every afternoon since returning from Christmas Break, working on lines, songs, and dance steps to bring the musical Annie Jr. to the Falmouth School Center stage.

The 26 member cast of sixth through eighth graders would like to invite community members to see their energetic production.

The show is scheduled to be performed on the Falmouth School Center stage Friday, January 25 and Saturday, January 26. Each show will begin at 7 p.m. with the doors opening at 6:30 p.m. Admission to the production will be $10 for adults and $5 for students. Daytime dress rehearsal performances have been scheduled for school groups on the 24th and 25th.

Pendleton County High

School GATES students have been working as directors, choreographers, music directors, costumers, and set designers for this production. Former PCHS student and current UC student, Brett Price, has also been serving as a co-general manager with GATES teacher, Michelle Lustenberg. This is truly a Pendleton County student collaborative effort that is a "must see" for everyone.

P.C. Conservation District is now accepting applications

The Pendleton County Conservation District is now accepting Kentucky Soil Erosion and Water Quality Cost Share Applications on a continuous basis. This continual sign-up is designed to make the program more "landowner friendly" and help address the needs of a landowner at any time during the year. As landowners plan conservation projects with the assistance of their local conservation district, they will be able to apply for financial assistance for those projects without having to wait for a designated sign up period.

Thousands of Kentucky landowners have received state assistance through the Kentucky Soil Erosion and Water Quality Cost Share program. Known informally as state cost share, the program was created in 1994 and helps landowners implement best management practices to protect soil and water resources on their property. Since the program's inception, more than $129 million has been approved for use in implementing best management practices through more than 15,000 submitted applications. This money has assisted landowners in all of Kentucky's 120 counties.

Many state cost share practices are offered through the state cost share program. Some examples are: agriculture and animal waste control facilities, streambank stabilization, animal waste utilization, vegetative filter strips, integrated crop management, pesticide containment, sinkhole protection, pasture and hay land forage quality and heavy use area protection. A list of all practices is available at <http://conservation.ky.gov/Pages/StateCostShare.aspx>.

The Kentucky Soil Erosion and Water Quality Cost Share program is funded through the Tobacco Settlement Funds and the Kentucky Department of Agriculture. For the 2013 program year, $2.5 million will be available to landowners across the state.

For more information on the Kentucky Soil Erosion and Water Quality Cost Share program, visit the Pendleton County Conservation District located at 814 US 27 South, Falmouth. You may also call the district at 859-654-3376, ext 3.

State jobless rate drops from November to December

Kentucky Press News Service
Kentucky's seasonally adjusted preliminary unemployment rate dropped to 8.1 percent in December from a revised 8.2 percent in November, according to the Office of Employment and Training.

The preliminary December 2012 jobless rate was .9 percentage points below the 9 percent rate recorded for the state in December 2011.

The U.S. seasonally adjusted jobless rate remained at 7.8 percent from November 2012 to December 2012, according to the U.S. Department of Labor.

Labor force statistics, including the unemployment rate, are based on estimates from the Current Population Survey of households. It is designed to measure trends rather than to count the actual number of people working. It includes jobs in agriculture and those classified as self-employed, according to state news release.

In December 2012, Kentucky's civilian labor force was 2,091,629, an increase of 6,142 individuals compared to the previous month. Employment also grew with the addition of 6,961 jobs.

"The expansion of the labor force means people are re-entering the job market because they see opportunities. In December, and for three of the last four months, new job growth has outpaced the entrants to the job market, driving down Kentucky's unemployment rate," economist Manoj Shanker of the OET said in the news release.

In a separate federal survey of business establishments that excludes jobs in agriculture and people who are self-employed, Kentucky's seasonally adjusted nonfarm employment decreased by 4,400 jobs in December 2012 from the previous month. On an over-the-year basis, the state's nonfarm employment has grown by 1.6 percent with the addition of 29,000 jobs.

The educational and health services sector gained 500 jobs in December 2012. The sector has posted a decline of 400 jobs since December 2011.

The information sector rose by 400 jobs in December 2012. This segment has 600 more positions compared to December 2011. The industries in this sector include traditional publishing as well as software publishing; motion pictures and broadcasting; and telecommunications.

The financial activities sector added 200 jobs in December 2012. Compared to December a year ago businesses involved in finance, insurance, real estate and property leasing have gained 2,100 jobs.

The number of jobs in the other services sector, which includes repairs and maintenance, personal care services, and religious organizations, remained flat from November 2012 to December 2012. Compared to a year ago, there has been a gain of 1,100 jobs.

Employment in the mining and logging sector fell by 100 positions in December 2012. The number of jobs in this sector has dropped by 1,200 or 5.5 percent since last December.

Kentucky's manufacturing sector lost 800 jobs in December 2012 compared to the previous month. Since December 2011, employment in manufacturing has increased by 1,400 jobs.

"Manufacturing hiring declined across the board in December compared to the previous month. There were declines in the fabricated metal industries, motor vehicle manufacturing and in apparel. This sector was affected by several companies that had planned week shutdown for retooling and maintenance in December, so it may rebound in January," said Shanker.

The government sector, which includes public education, public administration agencies and state-owned hospitals, decreased by 800 jobs in December 2012. The sector had 1,200 fewer jobs compared to December 2011.

The construction sector posted a decrease of 1,100 positions in December 2012 from a month ago. Since December 2011, employment in construction has fallen by 2,000 positions or 3 percent.

Vehicular accident means "lights out" for residents of Pendleton County

When the 1995 Dodge Power Ram driven by Tanner Florence, 20, of Ryan Road, Falmouth, left U.S. 27 on January 13 striking an electric pole it was "lights out" for eleven members of Blue Grass Energy. Florence was traveling northbound on U.S. 27 south of Falmouth in the rain when he applied his brakes. The brakes locked up causing the vehicle to leave the roadway and strike a Blue Grass Energy electric pole. The vehicle continued into the yard of a local residence coming to rest in the USDA parking lot. A passenger in the vehicle was Troy Florence of Falmouth.

Due to the accident power outage occurred to eleven residents of Meadowlark Lane and Blue Jay Circle. Blue Grass Energy workers received the call of disrupted service at 7:40 a.m. and were on the scene at 8:26 a.m. Service was restored by 8:40 a.m.

Pendleton County EMS were on the scene and treated the driver who refused transport. Falmouth Police Officer Mike Coppage worked the accident. Miles Towing removed the damaged vehicle from the scene.

"There is no doubt that America remains the premier political, economic, military power in the world, and I both expect and count on it remaining so, because I think that's certainly in our best interest but also the best interests of the world."

Poll shows depth of prescription drug abuse in Kentucky

By Molly Burchett and Al Cross
Kentucky Health News

One-third of Kentucky adults have friends or relatives who have experienced problems from abusing prescription pain relievers, and 8 percent have used pain medicine when it wasn't prescribed or for the feeling it caused, according to a statewide poll conducted last fall.

The Kentucky Health Issues Poll found that in Eastern Kentucky, 45 percent reported that prescription drug abuse have caused problems for friends or family members. In the 17-county Bluegrass Area Development District, which includes some Appalachian counties, the figure was 37 percent. It was 32 percent in Northern Kentucky, 31 percent in the seven-county Louisville area and 25 percent in Western Kentucky.

The poll found that young adults are more likely to have the problem. Among those 18 to 29 years old, 13 percent said they had used pain medicine when it wasn't prescribed or for the feeling it caused, and 49 percent said they had a friend or relative who had been affected.

The Foundation for a Healthy Kentucky, which co-sponsored the poll, noted that drug-overdose deaths in Kentucky correspond to a steep increase in the sales of opioid prescription pain relievers, which include OxyContin, Vicodin, Percocet and codeine. More than half of Kentucky adults in the poll reported being prescribed such drugs.

"While these types of medications are important for controlling pain in patients who need them, opioids also carry the potential for abuse," said Dr. Susan Zepeda, President and CEO of the foundation. "Our state ranks sixth in the nation for prescription pain reliever overdose deaths, and these data provide a window on how many Kentuckians are impacted — directly or indirectly — by prescription misuse."

The poll was conducted for the foundation and The Health Foundation of Greater Cincinnati from Sept. 20 through Oct. 14 by the Institute for Policy Research at the University of Cincinnati. A random sample of 1,680 adults throughout Kentucky was interviewed by landline and cell telephones. The poll's margin of error is plus or minus 2.5 percentage points.

Exporting natural gas would boost the American economy

By Merrill Matthews
"There's nothing like being a victim of your own success."

That must be what American natural gas producers are thinking right now. Their profound success in recent years in expanding our national energy supply has inspired American policymakers to consider strapping them with strict new trade restrictions.

These regulatory efforts are deeply misguided and will, ultimately, deprive the country of jobs and growth.

Thanks to major innovations in drilling techniques, America is facing a natural gas surplus, with the per-unit price of gas now sitting at just $3-about one-third to one-fifth the price in Europe and Asia. Utility plants have shifted from cheap coal to even cheaper and cleaner-natural gas. As a result, energy-related carbon emissions have been declining rapidly and now sit at levels not seen since the early 1990s.

But natural gas supply is outpacing demand. So, producers have cut back on extraction and the drilling of new wells. Many are turning back to more profitable oil plays. The number of natural gas rigs now in operation is half the total of a year ago.

As a result, natural gas producers are looking for new markets. The United States does currently export some natural gas to Canada and Mexico, but the real opportunities lie in overseas markets, where prices are much higher.

Shipping natural gas across great distances is challenging. This substance can't be easily loaded on a tanker like crude oil, so producers have to liquify it. The process involves super cooling gas to -260F, and the necessary facilities to cool it are predictably quite costly.

Most distressingly, however, is that the Department of Energy has been dragging its feet when considering natural gas firms' applications to establish export facilities. The department was waiting on a just-released study intended to assess the impact of natural gas exports on domestic natural gas prices. The study concluded that expanding natural gas exports would be an economic winner.

"In all of these cases, benefits that come from export expansion more than outweigh the losses from reduced capital and wage income to U.S. consumers, and hence LNG exports have net economic benefits in spite of higher domestic natural gas prices," according to the report. We'll have to see how the DOE responds.

Private sector companies have also been raising concerns that expanding exports could also force them to pay higher gas prices. They claim that cheap natural gas is spurring economic growth here at home and providing America's manufacturing sector with a valuable competitive advantage.

But their concerns, while understandable, are overblown. Allowing natural gas exports would, at worst, drive up domestic prices only slightly. The consulting firm Deloitte took a close look at the issue and determined that allowing exports would increase domestic prices by just 1.7 percent over the next 20 years.

What's more, banning exports might have the unintended consequence of driving gas prices up. Firms are already cutting back on production because of historically low prices. If they can't sell at higher prices in foreign markets, this ratcheting back will continue, causing the domestic gas supply to shrink anyway and forcing prices skyward. That's the very last think we want.

And even if expanding gas exports pushes domestic prices up initially, natural gas producers would have a new, substantial financial incentive to further ramp up production and develop more wells. This expansion would increase supply and put downward pressure on domestic prices.

Plus, expanding natural gas production to meet new foreign demand would create new jobs right here at home. Banning exports would deprive Americans of those opportunities.

That's precisely the effect we'd expect if policymakers installed a similar export ban on, say, American car companies. Ford and the like would take a massive hit as demand for their product declined. The car industry would suffer significantly lower revenues, inevitably leading to layoffs.

This exact same causal chain will transpire if federal policymakers prohibit gas exports.

There are vast new international markets for cleaner-burning natural gas. Allowing U.S. energy companies to fill that demand makes good economic sense and would lead to the creation of many new high-paying jobs.

Trade restrictions are almost always a bad idea. In the case of natural gas exports, they would be particularly foolish and economically disastrous.

Off-year Kentucky General Assembly flooded with work

By Scott Wartman,
The Kentucky Enquirer
Kentucky legislators last week began the 30-day regular session of the General Assembly.

Some say that's 30 days too many.

Lawmakers have often remarked that the 2013 session's brevity will make passing legislation tough.

Instead, some still believe the schedule prior to 2001 was more efficient when the General Assembly met in a 60-day regular session every two years and met in special sessions in the interim when called by the governor.

The General Assembly has 30 days this winter to address pension and tax reform, the Brent Spence Bridge, angel investment tax credits, expanded gambling, and redistributing among other topics.

Some lawmakers have said important issues, including financing of the bridge, might not get done as a result.

The General Assembly spent much of the first week of this year's session on leadership elections and committee assignments, then adjourned until Feb. 5. With veto days and other procedural issues, the state legislature has only 22 working days to address the issues, said State Rep. Arnold Simpson, D-Covington.

"In a 22-day session, it is very difficult to really effectively address major policy considerations like the pensions and the recommendations of the governor's task force on tax reform," Simpson said. "I've always thought when I was here for six years before they changed it, special sessions really worked out for the better."

The General Assembly has met for 60-day regular sessions in even-numbered years for more than 100 years but didn't start holding regular sessions in the odd-numbered years until 12 years ago.

In 1998, Kentucky voters approved a constitutional amendment for the General Assembly to meet in odd-numbered years for 30 days. At that time Kentucky was one of only nine states whose legislature met every other year in regular session.

Now only four states -- Montana, Nevada, North Dakota and Texas -- meet every other year, according to the National Conference of State Legislatures.

Many who argued against the Kentucky General Assembly meeting every year feared it would lead to more regulation. And 50 years ago, most states seemed to agree with that. In 1960, only 19 state legislatures met every year, the NCSL reports.

But after Kentucky governors in the 1990s called the legislature into special session 13 times, state legislators began calling for the ability to meet every year.

State Rep. Jody Richards, D-Bowling Green, served as speaker of the House from 1995 to 2008 and supported the amendment with the hope it would cut down on special sessions. Gov. Brereton Jones had called five special sessions between 1993-1994. The governor sets the agenda for special sessions.

"A legislature totally loses control in that sort of situation," Richards said. "If you believe in a balanced government, balanced between the executive and legislative branches, then certainly we have more control this way. When you had only 60 business days and the legislature is out of Frankfort for 21 months, the governor was in charge all those times."

Since 2001, however, Kentucky governors have called 10 special sessions, including one every year since 2006.

"I was not a supporter of the annual session amendment," said Sen. Katie Stine, R-Southgate, the Senate president pro tem. "If there was an important issue, the governor would call a special session. Virtually every governor since then has ended up doing just that. I think having the original schedule of regular sessions that were augmented by special sessions when necessary was a more efficient way of doing things."

Many say lawmakers treat the off-year, 30-day regular sessions the same as the 60-day sessions in even-numbered years. Former Sen. Jack Westwood, R-Erlanger, supported the amendment at the time but would vote to go back to biennial sessions if he had the chance. Legislators intended the off-year sessions to tweak laws passed in the 60-day sessions, not to introduce a flurry of new legislation, he said.

"We've treated them like a regular 60-day session," Westwood said. "Look at all the bills that were filed that could have been reserved for a longer session."

But the 30-day regular sessions have worked well at improving on legislation from the previous session, Richards said. This year, the General Assembly will address issues regarding last year's House Bill 1 to crack down on prescription drug abuse and illegal pill mills. Issues as large as prescription drug abuse can't wait two years to address, he said.

"Many, many citizens felt we needed annual sessions so we can be more timely with administrative regulations," Richards said.

Others, however, feel the biennial sessions were more cost-effective and focused. The 30-day session in 2013 will cost an estimated $65,676, including $26,599 for the salaries of legislators, the Legislative Research Commission reports.

Special sessions, which usually only last a few days, cost the state much less, Westwood said.

"I think if the legislative body put on the ballot again to go back to the biennial session, I'd be inclined to support it," Westwood said. "It is going to save money to not have an annual session. It is a lot cheaper to have short sessions. Everyone would work out the issues beforehand."

Ladycats team up to down Campbell County Lady Camels

Pressing, trapping, pounding the ball inside, shooting the three, slow it down, pick up the pace or many other choices are ways to win ball games. But one guaranteed way to win a basketball game is to have every player who was in the game contribute at a high level. Six players in double digits will win you a bunch of ball games.

And for the Ladycats versus Campbell it was the formula to defeat one of the best teams in the 10th Region. They were rated as high as 4th in the 10th Region according to the Cantrall Ratings.

McKayla Manor led the Ladycats with 13 points but five others were bunched right behind her. Isabella Hall and Taylor McClanahan had 12 each, Bailey Wanstrath had 11, with Heather Jolley and Bradi Boden chalking up 10 each.

Coach Scott Collins succinctly summed the victory up, "It was a total team effort."

He continued, "Bradi and MM (McKayla) both handled the pressure tonight and played strong. TMac (Taylor) and Bdubs (Bailey) both came off the bench for big games. Heather played well inside and was a defensive presence that forced Campbell to have to change shots."

With Ashten Wolfe still sidelined with an ankle injury, Isabella had to play all 32 minutes under constant pressure and stepped up big.

"And poor Isabella, I needed to rest her and just couldn't. I had to have her on the floor because Campbell County was going to trap us everywhere on the floor and swipe at the ball."

Another sure fire method to win ball games, make free throws down the stretch while holding onto a lead. Another part of the game that the Ladycats got straight A's on. They went 12 of 16 in the final quarter and held a 21-27 advantage in the game.

The Lady Camels went 20-33.

The Ladycats are 7-8 and in position to make a run throughout the rest of January. Saturday they host district rival Nicholas County in a tripleheader with the Kittens game schedule for 4 p.m.

They follow up by hosting St. Patrick at 7 p.m. on Martin Luther King Jr. Day and bitter 38th District rival, Harrison County on Friday, January 25 in a girls/boys doubleheader. Ladycats scheduled first at 6 p.m. PC has a 23-point win in the books against the Fillies from earlier in the season.

Wildcats lose to Conner Cougars by score of 78-61

By Bruce Reller Jr., Reporter

The Pendleton County Wildcats fell behind by 16 points in the first quarter and never recovered in a 78-61 home loss to the Conner Cougars last Tuesday, January 15.

"I felt that we were not ready to play mentally and perhaps physically also," Wildcats head coach Ed Cravens said. "We have a lot of kids battling illness, and I think this was a partial factor."

Conner led 26-10 after one quarter and 41-24 at halftime. The Cougars led by as much as 20 points in the third quarter and never looked back in the victory.

"When you get down as much as we did in the first quarter, it is hard to recover on this," Cravens explained. "Conner is a solid team. They are big and strong inside and just dominated us on the boards. It is hard to win when you give your opponent repeated shots."

Wildcat senior Mason Monroe scored a team-high 18 points, including 10 free throws. Senior Aaron Gibson contributed 16 points, and senior Ethan Moore added 14 points for PC.

Junior Landon Lamblez scored a game-high 19 points for Conner, and junior Drew Barker added 17 points for the winning

The Wildcats (9-9) also played host to Mason County last Friday, January 18. However, results were unavailable as of press time.

Pendleton County will next play on the road against Ludlow this Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. They will then play host to district rival Harrison County in the Hooves and Paws game this Friday at 8:00 p.m.

Wildcats: Jones 3 0 9, Appleman 1 1 3, Gibson 6 4 16, Colvin 0 1 1, Monroe 3 10 18, Moore 7 0 14. Totals 20 16 61.

Teresa Runnion will soon be having some of her real gem bead jewelry, including turquoise made with the western/Native American Indian style there.

Bryan and his wife Margo have lived in Falmouth for the past 13 years. "We love this town with all its old history, such as battles," he said with a smile. "Since I have been here I have seen so much talent and I want to help others to feel good about themselves and display their work here. Bryan hopes to build a really strong art community and is not short on ideas of how to do so. Once the weather breaks he is hopeful about having monthly shows, getting families, friends, and other people in the community to come in so local artists can showcase their work."

He said he will be doing family portraits in February as soon as he can get his backdrops and lighting installed.

Bryan is also handling mirrors, in a variety of shapes and sizes, plain or beveled. Be sure to stop by to look at these.

With his list of some of the talents we've shared, he was also a professional musician and was on years. One night he said, I looked out in the crowd and really took a good look at their faces. I saw pain, hurt and others things going on and I said to myself, I have to get out of here. I told my boss I wasn't going to do this no more. I have missed important birthdays and other events and I'm not doing it any more. He gave a thirty day notice and was back home after 45 days.

Today he uses his musical talents as a drummer in the band at Plum Creek Church.

Bryan says a good friend of his made it possible for him to come into her Frames and Photos business to give him the opportunity to get back into the framing business. Her name is Judy Spicer. She used to have her photography, antiques, and basket business in downtown Falmouth. She has been such a huge inspiration to him. She not only encouraged but motivated him.

Judy's Frames and Photos business was destroyed over night when someone purposely broke the glass out in the front door and set fire to the building. That fire, arson as it was, crippled three businesses and caused another to go out of business from so much smoke damage.

The fire was devastating for Spicer. She lost so much of her equipment and photos of her own and for others. Judy is now working out of her home. Bryan has ask her to bring some of her photography and other things down and put them in his gallery.

"The American Dream is still possible even though the economy is still not good. If you work hard and keep pushing you can get there," shared Bryan.

"I like to say that I learned a lot about business and to not give up from Judy Spicer and Randy Bastin, who owned the building where Frames and Photos was that was set on fire. He has operated his business through many rough times."

"There is another person I want to thank for believing in me and helping me to be able to get my framing business and gallery up and going and that is Dixie Owen."

Pictures Plus is open Monday, Tuesday, Thursday, Friday from 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. and Saturdays 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. Bryan can be reached at (859) 462-8910, or on facebook by picturesplus. His e-mail is picturesplus54@gmail.com. and home phone is (859) 951-1118.

Heroin

While prescription drug abuse has risen, so too has heroin abuse. Heroin samples collected and analyzed by the Kentucky State Police lab jumped 211 percent from 2010 to 2012. The lab analyzed and confirmed 433 heroin submissions in 2010 compared to 1,349 in 2012.

"The misuse of prescription medications is often a stepping stone to the abuse of illicit drugs like heroin," said Van Ingram, Executive Director of the Kentucky Office of Drug Control Policy. "Tamper-proof formulations of popular opioids have also contributed to a resurgence of heroin abuse and it's cheaper and more readily available."

Kentucky is the fourth most medicated state in the country, and it has the sixth highest rate of overdose deaths. More than 1,000 Kentuckians die each year from prescription drug overdoses.

Warning Signs of Drug Abuse

- Unexplained weight loss or gain
- Inability to sleep, fatigue
- Slowed or staggering walk
- Extreme hyperactivity
- Tremors
- Irregular heartbeat
- Needle marks of lower arm, leg or bottom of feet
- Change in overall attitude/personality

- Declining academic performance
- Sudden oversensitivity, moodiness
- Unexplained need for money

Combating Prescription Drug Abuse

In 2009, General Conway launched Kentucky's first and only statewide Prescription Drug Diversion Task Force to increase investigations into pill mills, overprescribing physicians, prescription drug trafficking and doctor shopping. To date, General Conway's Drug Investigations Branch and Task Force have opened more than 430 cases. The Task Force also participated in Operation Flamingo Road, the state's largest prescription drug bust that resulted in the arrests of more than 500 people.

General Conway's Office joined forces with the Kentucky Office of Drug Control Policy, concerned parents and other state and law enforcement partners in 2010 to launch the Keep Kentucky Kids Safe prescription drug abuse awareness initiative.

To date, the partners have alerted more than 15,000 middle and high school students to the dangers of misusing prescription drugs.

Attorney General Conway also worked closely with Governor Beshear, House Speaker Stumbo and other lawmakers to win passage of landmark legislation in 2012 to prevent the abuse and diversion of prescription pills in the Commonwealth.

Since its implementation, 20 of the state's 43 known pain management clinics have shut down because they can't comply with the registration requirements of House Bill 1. The number of medical providers registered to use the state's prescription drug monitoring program (KASPER) has tripled, while KASPER reports have jumped from 3,000 to nearly 20,000 per day.

Additionally, prescriptions for some of the most abused or diverted drugs dropped from November 2011 to November 2012. Prescriptions for Hydrocodone and Oxycodone are down 16 percent and Opana prescriptions, linked to a growing number of overdose deaths, have dropped 48 percent.

For more information on General Conway's prescription drug diversion efforts, visit <http://ag.ky.gov/rxabuse/>.

Pendleton Co. Fiscal Court meeting

Pendleton County Fiscal Court meeting will meet at 7 p.m., January 22, 2013. Tentative agenda is call to order, prayer, pledge, approval of agenda, approval of minutes, approval of treasurer's report, presentation by Faith Community Pharmacy, approve sheriff's access fees for 2012, second reading of Starving Horse Ordinance, second reading of New County Administrative Code read in summary, resolution approving County Road Maintenance List for 2013, resolution laying out cost for culvert installation, approve quote for installation of roof over break room, order laying out expense reimbursement for county officials and staff, quote for bricking up windows in the EOC Building, transfers, pay bills, closing remarks - Judge Bertram/magistrates and adjourn.

undergone renovations district-wide to improve efficiency. These include lighting upgrades, HVAC automated monitoring systems, occupancy sensors in rooms and purchasing of high efficiency equipment. Student energy teams also played an integral part in the school's energy efficiency and sustainability programs creating an energy saving culture among students and staff throughout the district.

According to Energy Manager Nathan Wright, "Pendleton County School District energy savings in 2012 totaled more than $77,000; reducing electricity consumption by 579,686 kWh and preventing emissions of 1,224,000 pounds of carbon dioxide. This is equivalent to the carbon dioxide emissions from the electricity use of 83 homes for one year, or the amount of carbon sequestered annually by 455 acres of pine forests."

With the addition of these four schools, Kentucky is now home to 197 school facilities that have received the ENERGY STAR.

ENERGY STAR Leaders must meet one of two energy efficiency improvement milestones. The first milestone requires a 10 percent improvement in energy performance across their entire building portfolio, and subsequent recognition is given for each 10 percent improvement thereafter.

The second milestone, known as "top performer," requires the buildings in an organization's portfolio, on average, to perform in the top 25 percent of similar buildings nationwide. To be eligible for ENERGY STAR Leaders recognition, organizations are required to track and submit energy performance data for all buildings and fuel sources through EPA's ENERGY STAR Portfolio Manager Tool.

More than 200 organizations have been recognized by EPA as ENERGY STAR Leaders, and nearly half have met or exceeded the President's 20 percent energy efficiency improvement goal. Nationally, ENERGY STAR Leaders have cumulatively saved more than $150 million on utility bills and prevented greenhouse gas emissions equal to the electricity used by nearly 95,000 homes.

The complete list of ENERGY STAR Leaders includes school districts, national retailers, commercial real estate companies, healthcare systems, supermarket operators and hotel managers that have achieved energy efficiency improvements across more than 11,400 buildings covering nearly 730 million square feet in the United States.

Energy use in commercial buildings accounts for nearly 20 percent of total U.S. greenhouse gas emissions at a cost of more than $100 billion per year. With help from EPA's ENERGY STAR program, thousands of businesses and organizations are improving the energy efficiency of the places where we work, play and learn and are saving billions of dollars and preventing millions of tons of greenhouse gas emissions from entering the atmosphere each year.

BLANKET CREEK

Sunday morning after a special by the choir Bibles were presented to our new Christians Carl Porter and Mike Bruin. Psalm 34:9-10 was the scripture used for Bro. Joe's message "Encouragement for today, the blessings of obedience." We have God's unfailing love and affection. He never changes or gives up on us. We have the guarantee of the Lord's sufficient grace, the pledge of the Lord's abundant provision to those who respect, love and admire Him. James 5:7 says the day of the Lord is near. He will find you wherever you are saved or unsaved. You can't hide from Him. If we have accepted, serve and obey Him we have the certainty of the Lord's loving welcome into His kingdom.

Announcements: Food is needed to restock the food pantry and family night at 6:30 p.m., January 25.

Added to prayer concerns: Jack Clifton, Peter Diamond, Lisa Ammerman and the family of Clyde Cockrell.

BUTLER METHODIST

Jesus's baptism anniversary was celebrated during services on Sunday morning. All those who had been baptized in the past were able to come forward and reaffirm their baptism. Pastor Dave spoke to each and every person and anointed them with water to remember their baptism. It was a very touching service. Anyone who has not been baptized had an opportunity to speak with Pastor David following the service.

The ladies will be having their first meeting of the year on Friday and the men will start the year with a breakfast meeting on Saturday morning. If anyone in the church is not a member or either group an invitation is extended to each of you. Please join us. P.S. there is always food.

We were happy to wish Lila a very happy birthday through our many cards sent her way this week.

We also were thankful that Becca is going to be working with Pastor David at NKU's Wesley Foundation.

Please keep Nancy's friend Cindy Hill in your prayers, as well as Alice, Becca (starting her student teaching), Pam's family in the death of her sister, Carolyn as she heals from her knee surgery, and all the others mentioned on Sunday.

Please come and start your new year out right by joining us for service on Sunday at 11.

FALMOUTH BAPTIST

"I am not ashamed of the gospel, because it is the power of God for the salvation of everyone who believes." Romans 1:16

Bro. Cohen reminded us that the message of the gospel has the power to save us. The message of the gospel also has the power to change us, to sanctify us – to free us from sin, to purify us. It has the power to satisfy us and to solve problems for us.

It can stabilize our relationships and it gives us the power for service – to serve Him more. The message of the gospel is incredibly powerful.

Our closing choral response for January is "Make me a servant." Make me a servant, humble and meek; Lord, let me lift up those who are weak. And may the prayer of my heart always be: Make me a servant, make me a servant, make me a servant today!

FALMOUTH CHRISTIAN

Our choir opened the service this week with a beautiful song titled "I asked the Lord." Three of our youth joined in the singing which made it even better.

Brother Rick's sermon was about the importance of prayer in our lives and why we should pray reverently each day. His message was taken from the book Psalm 5:1-12.

Our men are geared up for the chili/soup cook-off for January 20 following the morning service. It will be interesting to see who will claim the title of head cook for the day.

Sunday school starts at 9:30 a.m. and morning worship at 10:45 a.m. Come and join us each week as we unite in fellowship together.

Remember to pray each day for those with so many needs. Have a blessed week.

FALMOUTH METHODIST

Soon after her mother died, Jenny faced the difficult task of sorting through her belongings. It had been years since she had said, "I love you, Mom." Now it was too late. Her feelings of guilt and loss made the task even more painful.

In the back of a closet in her mother's bedroom, she found a box with the words "To Jenny With Love" handwritten on the outside. Inside were dozens of carefully labeled photographs: "Daytona Beach 1953," "Jenny's first bike," "Graduation, 1970," "Dad's retirement, 1978."

As she relived moments from her past, Jenny's spirits began to rise. Through her mother's final gift, she experienced the healing power of God's love.

Before he left them, Jesus comforted his disciples in the same way. "Peace I leave with you, my peace I give unto you. Let not your heart be troubled, neither let it be afraid."

FIRST BAPTIST

Greetings! Tammy Moore blessed us with, "Great is thy faithfulness," for special music this morning. Bro. Harry's message was taken from Romans. How many of us loves someone enough to die for them? Jesus loved us so much that He faced trials, tribulations and crucifixion. He died on the cross for our sins and salvation. How can we let all He suffered mean so little that we forget to love Jesus back? How can anyone handle distress and troubles without the love of Christ and our church family. God's love is unconditional.

We were blessed to be able to remove some names from our prayer list. God is awesome!

Remember to pray for the lost, those facing illness, those who have lost loved ones, and our military.

"Your life is like a coin. You can spend it anyway you want, - but only once!"

Creativity, Education and the Gift of "Stress"

Psychologists have long recognized that for most of us there is a creative "sweet spot," or (perhaps more accurately) a "sweet zone," somewhere on the continuum between a complete lack of stress and disabling distress. Most of us need the variety of inputs life brings, including experiences of dissonance and difficulty and tension, in order to achieve some level of creative output. This "sweet zone," because it is broader than a single point on the continuum, varies from one person to another, obviously; but, for any particular person, it may also vary from one situation and activity to another.

For every Toulouse-Lautrec creatively thriving on the cacophony of the Paris nightlife, there's an Emily Dickinson whose creative life is unimaginable without solitude. And, for any one of us, there are some moments when we need the stimulation of a group to think creatively, and other moments when we really need to shut the door and turn off the music in order to collect our thoughts.

Recently, in an essay, "The Uses of Difficulty" in the cultural supplement, Intelligent Life (published by The Economist), journalist Ian Leslie explored the role the distressing pole of the stress continuum plays in creativity and learning. Leslie tells a story which may be familiar to fans of The Beatles, how in 1966, after completing their "Rubber Soul" album, Paul McCartney explored the possibility of arranging for the group to record their next album in the United States where the recording studios were more technologically advanced than in Britain. The contract between The Beatles and EMI, however, made such a move

"I know that you can do all things, and that no purpose of Yours can be thwarted."

~Psalm 42:2

HARVEST

Bro. Donnie's morning message was based on scripture text of Esther 4:13-14. God has a plan and purpose for each of our lives. He has placed us here at this time for a reason. God has placed us here at this time for a reason. God has placed you where you are, "For such a time as this." Ask God for direction and respond.

MT. MORIAH

Sunday, January 13, was the last day for Darrell Breeden as our minister. He has been our pastor for the last ten years and has been very beneficial in the growth of our church. We will miss him very much. We prayerfully wish the very best for he and Katie in the future.

We at Mt. Moriah are looking forward to starting an extension of our church building in the spring. The extension will provide space for a larger kitchen and Sunday school rooms.

The choir is enjoying singing old favorite hymns during the months of January and February. We will resume regular rehearsals in March as we begin preparing for Easter. New members are always welcome!

Our prayer list continues to grow. Several people are seriously ill and need much prayer. We appreciate everyone's prayers for their healing.

Anyone needing a church or just wanting to visit is always welcome at Mt. Moriah Christian Church, Disciples of Christ. "God is our refuge and strength, a very present help in time of trouble."

NEW HOPE

It has been 40 years since the Supreme Court ruled on Roe vs. Wade. Since that time, our country has been debating on when life begins. Life is something precious, it is a gift of God. God gave mankind life at creation (Genesis 2:7). Taking innocent life (that is a person who did no wrong) is a sin. The nation should repent of this sin. The life of a baby, born or unborn, is not something we have the right to take away. Instead, we have obligation to protect it. Let's pray for the protection of every life.

OAKLAND

The vision of God's church is to get people connected. Then grow them up, give them tools to be able to serve, and then send them to serve. That's God's vision. Is it ours?

Prayer concerns include Jim Fields, Hazel Ramsey (sciatic

SOUTHSIDE CHRISTIAN

We opened the morning service with the hymn, "His name is Wonderful" January 13. Brother Clay Sullivan preached the sermon, "Pray until something happens" from Luke 18:1-8. Brother Clay talked about three important principles Jesus taught in the parable of the persistent widow: 1. Don't worry, pray. 2. Don't quit, pray persistently and 3. Don't doubt, pray positively. The memory verse for the week comes from Philippians 4:6, "Do not be anxious about anything, but in everything, by prayer and petition, with thanksgiving, present your request to God."

Brother Clay will be beginning the Wednesday night Bible study series on "Spiritual Warfare" at 7 p.m., on Wednesday, January 16. Set aside each Wednesday for the next few weeks and plan to attend.

Be in prayer for all in one way or another.

Come and worship with us this Sunday: 9 a.m. Sunday school and 10 a.m. worship service.

TURNER RIDGE

We rejoice in how 2013 has started out at Turner Ridge, by following the two ordinances (rules) of our church as commanded by Jesus. We celebrated while receiving the Lord's Supper, "on January 6, "...do this in remembrance of Me" Luke 22:19.

We celebrated with a baptism, on January 13, "unless one is born again he cannot see the kingdom of God" John 3:3.

As life throws you curves, remember there is someone who will listen, Pray, Jesus is waiting.

If you are in need of a church family you would be welcome at Turner Ridge. Services are on Sunday at 10 and 11 a.m., 6:30 and 7 p.m., Wednesday night at 7 p.m.

Michael Jenkins | THINKING OUT LOUD

impractical. So, John, Paul, George and Ringo, together with George Martin and his ingenious engineers, were forced to push, pull and manipulate their primitive recording equipment and all the instruments at their disposal to go beyond their previous efforts. Tripping over one another in the old Abbey Road studios, the group discovered that the obstacles they faced actually boosted their creativity, and consequently they created sounds that nobody had ever heard before, resulting in 1967, of course, to "Sgt. Pepper's Lonely Hearts Club Band."

Leslie goes on to comment on the obverse effect, the negative consequence of removing certain difficulties and making things easier. Drawing on an interview with the poet Ted Hughes in the Paris Review, Leslie relates Hughes' experience of judging a poetry competition for young writers. For some 20 years, beginning in the 1960s, Hughes had served as a judge. And during this time he noticed a change in the length and quality of the poems he judged. While many of the poems were "verbally inventive," they had also grown "strangely boring," especially at a length of some 80 pages.

What had changed during these two decades? The advent of the home computer.

"You might have thought," Leslie writes, "any tool which enables a writer to get words on to the page would be an advantage. But there may be a cost to such a facility."

John Gardner, the novelist and teacher of creative writing, in his classic study, The Art of Fiction, reflects on the obstacles presented to the writer of fiction who wishes to make creative use of historical material or well-known legends. A writer, he observes, "is to some extent stuck with these facts. If he changes things too noticeably, the reader may feel that the writer has made things too easy for himself - playing tennis without the net as Robert Frost said of poetry without rhyme." (J. Gardner, The Art of Fiction: Notes on Craft for Young Writers, New York: Random House, 1985, p. 170). But, for whatever reason, our brains find such challenges, the imposition of limits and obstacles, stimulating and satisfying. This is why we find puzzles of various sorts and certain kinds of game shows so engaging. It is also why some of the most extraordinary works of art have emerged under the most adverse circumstances.

There is an even more important lesson in all of this, however, at least for those of us who are educators. For years, educational researchers have been telling us that difficulties and obstacles in the learning process can actually encourage greater depth of learning and retention of knowledge. One of the researchers mentioned in Leslie's Intelligent Life essay is the cognitive psychologist, Robert Bork. Bjork's Learning & Forgetting Lab at UCLA has sponsored some fascinating research on the theme, "desirable difficulties," a concept introduced by Bjork in 1994.

In an online article published by Wired, titled, "Everything You Thought You Knew About Learning Is Wrong," Garth Sundem relates an interview he conducted with Bjork. According to Bjork, the best strategy for learning new material and retaining what you learn begins first by rejecting the common method that many people adopt of trying to learn in discrete blocks, "mastering one thing before moving on to the next." Instead Bjork suggests the strategy of what he calls "interleaving," that is forcing yourself to move back and forth between subjects and ideas you are attempting to learn.

Imagine, for example, a learning situation where you were forced to leap from translating Hebrew to reading Jonathan Edwards and back to biblical Hebrew again, or of studying for an exam in church history over the first four centuries of the church's development interleaved with doing research into potential threads of Trinitarian thought in the Gospel of John.

This process of "interleaving," Bjork says, "creates a sense of difficulty" which actually increases your capacity to learn and to retain knowledge. "Successful interleaving," according to Bjork, allows the learner "to seat" each skill among the others." He explains, "If information is studied so that it can be interpreted in relation to other things in memory, learning is much more powerful. There's one caveat: Make sure the mini skills you interleave are related in some higher-order way."

Bjork also observes that while it is true that "if you study and then you wait, tests show that the longer you wait, the more you will have forgotten," he also states that "if you study, wait, and then study again, the longer the wait, the more you'll learn after the second study session." Why? Because, Bjork explains, "When we access things from our memory, we do more than reveal it's there. It's not like a playback. What we retrieve becomes more retrievable in the future."

These insights are not only counterintuitive; they are counter-cultural.

We live amid educational, social and even ecclesial cultures that tell us at every turn that we are only successful if lots of people are participating in the activities we offer and that the best way to attract lots of people is to make our educational, social and church programs as simple, easy and fun as possible so these people will remain "happy." I remember being taught the instructional acronym KISMIF (Keep It Simple Make It Fun) years ago. This may be good advice for the entertainment industry. But it may not be the best advice for schools and churches. If what people are learning in our schools and churches really matters to the quality of their lives, indeed to the quality of our common life, and if we hope to increase their capacity for learning as well as to engage them in a deep and meaningful quest for knowledge and wisdom, we may just want to make the process of learning meaningfully and appropriately difficult. We may even find that this can be fun, too.

Preparing for tax season is half the battle

Now is the time when we start thinking about filing our income taxes from the previous year. Even though it's an annual event, it can cause anxiety for many. By preparing now, you can ease the process for yourself and your tax preparer.

The Internal Revenue Service tracks everyone by their Social Security number. Make sure you have your number and that of your spouses if filing jointly, plus the number(s) of your dependent(s). In addition to your W-2 or like form, you want to include information about any interest you earned from savings accounts, stocks or mutual funds as these are also taxable.

One of the largest deductions many people can claim is mortgage interest. If you have a mortgage, you should get a 1098 form from your lender specifying how much interest you paid in the last year. You will also want to remember any documentation for any additional deductions you may have, such as property taxes paid and charitable donations made within the past year. Common forms of documentation for charitable donations include a cancelled check if you gave a monetary donation or an itemized receipt if you donated clothes or other goods.

Your goal should be to break even at tax time, which means you don't receive a big refund from the state or federal government or you don't have to write a big check to either or both.

Every year, thousands of taxpayers will get refunds. While some consider overpaying in taxes on their paycheck a form of forced savings, you may want to consider how you could use this money throughout the year. The extra money could help you with such things as building your personal savings or emergency fund, make ing an extra house payment or paying off debt. To change your tax withholding, you will need to file a new W-4 form with your employer.

Many tax preparers advertise immediate money through tax refund advance services. However, these may not be the best idea for many. A fee is usually assessed in exchange for the quick cash. Tax refund advances are similar to payday loan, and both are some of the most expensive ways to borrow money. According to the Consumer Action website, annual percentages rates can range from 50 to 500 percent on tax refund advances. A tax advance refund, or rapid refund, is a loan. If for some reason your refund is less than anticipated, you could end up paying the difference between the two and possibly additional fees or interest. Perhaps a better way to get your refund quickly is to electronically file your taxes as early as possible and have it deposited directly into your checking account. By doing so, you could have your refund as soon as 10 days later.

If you owe the IRS money this year, you may want to consider changing your withholding status with your employer so more money can be taken out throughout the year, so you're not hit with a big payment next year. If you owe taxes but don't have the money to pay due to unemployment or a reduction in work in the past year, you may qualify for the IRS's Fresh Start program, which may allow you to repay your debt in installments without failure-to-pay penalties. There are income and tax limits associated with this program. For more information on it, visit <http://www.irs.gov>.

Five simple ways to shed pounds and save energy in 2013

With the holidays over and the guests out of the house, many are turning their attention to another annual tradition — the New Year's resolution.

While Kentucky Utilities Company and Louisville Gas and Electric Company can't motivate someone to go to the gym, the utilities can inspire you to save energy this year with a variety of energy efficiency programs available to residential electric customers.

Here are five energy-saving resolutions for the New Year:

1. Perform a Home Energy Analysis: KU and LG&E offer two types: online and on-site. The online home energy analysis takes about 10 minutes and provides a customized report that includes recommendations on how to save energy. Or, sign up for an on-site home energy analysis and a certified technician will assess your home's energy efficiency. Financial incentives are also available to eligible customers who take action to make their homes more energy efficient as a result of an on-site analysis.
2. Recycle that Old, Inefficient Fridge or Freezer: The fastest and easiest way to drop some (household) weight is to recycle that old, inefficient fridge or freezer hanging out in your garage or basement. Make an appointment, and KU and LG&E will pick-up, haul away and properly recycle your working energy hog. In return, you'll receive $30 per recycled appliance within six to eight weeks.
3. Apply for a Home Energy Rebate: KU and LG&E offer monetary rewards ranging from $50 to $300 to help residential electric customers offset the purchasing costs of certain ENERGY STAR® certified appliances, high-efficiency HVAC systems and qualified window film.

4. Enroll in Demand Conservation: Get paid to help KU and LG&E better manage peak summer energy demand. Even though it's winter, the utilities can still install a device on your home's central air conditioning unit or heat pump. In return, the utilities will credit your monthly utility bill, June through September.

5. Check your HVAC System's Air Filter: Check your HVAC system's air filter monthly and replace as necessary, according to the manufacturer's recommendations. A dirty filter will slow air flow, making your system work harder to keep you warm in winter.

Visit lge-ku.com/savingenergy to learn more and to sign up for all the energy-saving programs listed.

Louisville Gas and Electric Company and Kentucky Utilities Company, part of the PPL Corporation (NYSE: PPL) family of companies, are regulated utilities that serve a total of 1.2 million customers and have consistently ranked among the best companies for customer service in the United States. LG&E serves 321,000 natural gas and 397,000 electric customers in Louisville and 16 surrounding counties. Kentucky Utilities serves 546,000 customers in 77 Kentucky counties and five counties in Virginia. More information is available at www.lge-ku.com and www.pplweb.com.

Comer praises makers of industrial hemp

Agriculture Commissioner James Comer addressed the Kentucky Chamber of Commerce Board of Directors met in Lexington on a variety of agriculture topics, including industrial hemp. After his address, the Chamber Board voted unanimously to support the industrial hemp legislation. Comer says Senate Bill 50, filed by Senator Paul Hornback, has broad bi-partisan support in the General Assembly, and the Chamber's endorsement will strengthen that coalition.

"When Kentucky's leading voice for small businesses and economic development endorses a piece of legislation, lawmakers sit up and listen," Commissioner Comer said. "This office stands in full support of Senate Bill 50, and I am proud to join a bi-partisan group of legislators seeking to get government out of the way, allow the production of industrial hemp, and create jobs in Kentucky."

Senate Bill 50 carries some powerful co-sponsors, including Senate Majority Leader Damon Thayer, Majority Caucus Chair Dan Seum, and Democrat Senators Robin Webb, Walter Blevins and Denise Harper-Angel. House Republican Leader Jeff Hoover has also publicly stated his support for industrial hemp legislation, along with many in his caucus. Commissioner Comer, who revived and now chairs the Kentucky Industrial Hemp Commission, stood with U.S. Senator Rand Paul months ago in support of the issue, and a majority of Kentucky's federal delegation is now backing industrial hemp.

"It's been a long, tough road to this point," Comer said. "But because the people were overwhelming supportive, we now have legislation that could put Kentucky first in line for these jobs. We still have a tough fight ahead, but when you've won the people, you'll win the day."

SHELLEY MEYER, 4-H/YOUTH DEVELOPMENT

4-H Camp job opportunities available

Even though it's the middle of winter, it's not too early to start thinking about summer camp or summer jobs. 4-H has a way to combine both. All 4-H camps are now hiring staff for the summer camping season.

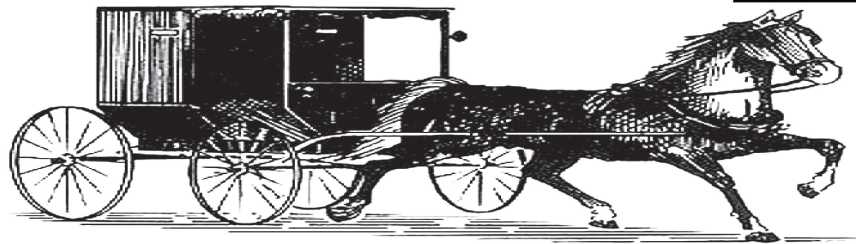

Many opportunities for rewarding summer jobs have recently been posted. Applications must be completed online at <http://www.uky.edu/hr/ukjobs>. For more information about the application process, go to <http://www2.ca.uky.edu/4-h/camp/employment>. The deadline for applications is March 4.

All staff members are required to be trained and certified in first aid and CPR before they can be employed by the 4-H camping program (prior to the beginning of camp staff training).

Prospective applicants need to be aware that ALL employees are required to attend the pre-camp training program and summer in-service trainings provided at each location. Training dates in 2013 are:

High ropes training for ropes instructors: April 12-14 at Lake Cumberland 4-H Educational Center, Jabez

Managers training: April 26-28 at Lake Cumberland 4-H Educational Center

By: Lovina Eicher

3:10 a.m. - The alarm goes off to start another day here in the Eicher household. It has taken some getting used to, having a scheduled time to get up this week now that everyone is back to school and work. I packed husband Joe's lunch, which was leftover macaroni and cheese from last night's supper, an orange, cookies, applesauce, and homemade party mix. Joe waits to eat something until breakfast break time so I make sure I send plenty along to eat. I also fill his jug with ice cubes and water.

3:45 a.m. - Joe leaves for work. They are leaving earlier since the winter weather has started. I set my alarm for 4:50 a.m. and go back to bed.

4:50 a.m. - I get up again. Daughter Elizabeth is awake already packing her lunch and fixing herself a little breakfast. Elizabeth always tells me that I can stay in bed but I enjoy this time together with her. We always get to have some alone time to visit with one another while we wait for her ride to work.

5:15 a.m. - Elizabeth leaves for work. I relax and read in my recliner until 6 a.m. but sometimes dozing off to sleep.

6 a.m. - I wake up the seven other children. Kevin seems to be having the most difficult time getting used to the early wake up calls again after the Christmas and New Year's break from school.

7 a.m. - The six youngest children leave for school with the bus.

8:20 a.m. - Susan goes out to do the morning chores but comes in soon after as her ride is here for her baby-sitting job. Susan misunderstood the time so she hurries up to get ready to leave. Susan leaves and I need to do the outside chores that Susan didn't get finished. Before I get that far I receive the shocking news that there was a van accident and two of my cousins were killed. There were some anxious moments as I knew this was the same carpenter crew that my brother Amos worked with. I found out Amos was taken to a nearby hospital.

10:15 a.m. - Sisters Susan, Verena, Emma, and I went to the hospital to be with Amos. His family had an over two hour drive to come to the hospital because they were en route to a job site far from his home (but close to mine). Once Amos's test results came back they thought he should stay overnight since both his lungs were bruised. Amos, however, didn't want to stay since he was anxious to get back home to his family. I offered that he could come to our house until his family arrived.

1 p.m. - We are back home. Brother Albert and wife Sarah Irene, sister Emma, her daughter Elizabeth and son Steven, sisters Verena and Susan all gathered at our house to keep Amos company. I made lunch for everyone with the help of the others. Amos was really sore and stiff from the cuts and bruises. He also had a badly bruised hip, but x-rays showed no broken bones. He remained strong through it all. Our thoughts go to the families of the

All camp staff training: May 19-22 at Lake Cumberland 4-H Educational Center
On-site training: May 23-24 at each camp.

All camp employees must have a health examination conducted by licensed medical personnel within the last 24 months prior to the start of camping season.

Pre-employment national criminal background/National Sex Offender checks will be conducted on all new University of Kentucky employees.

Staff will work 40 hours or more per camping session (four or five days). Interviews for 2013 (including returning staff) will be conducted beginning March 11.

4-H Camping in Kentucky is one of the largest co-educational camping programs in the nation. The camps are located at four locations in the state, encompassing between 300 and 1,500 acres. All sites are American Camp Association (ACA) accredited, and the program hosts more than 8,000 young people each summer. Summer 4-H Camps are co-educational for 9- to 14-year-olds and are four to five days in length. Staff has separate living quarters from the campers.

LINDIE HUFFMAN, AGRICULTURE AND NATURAL RESOURCES

Over 400 soil samples were processed and analyzed by the Pendleton County Extension Office in 2012!

The Pendleton County Cooperative Extension Service is now offering 20 free soil samples per sampling category. The categories are as follows:

- A: Agriculture
- C: Commercial Horticulture
- H: Home, Lawn, and Garden

A farm serial number must be provided for agriculture samples.

Each soil sample thereafter will cost the individual $5.00 per sample. The Extension office will cover shipping costs of the samples.

Why soil sample you may ask? Soil sampling is a quick, efficient, and cost effective best management practice that provides important information to make decisions concerning:

- How much lime to use in crop fields, lawns, vegetable or flower beds.
- How much fertilizer to use on lawns, vegetables, flowers, and shrubs.
- How to adjust the soil pH for optimum growth of acid-loving plants such as azaleas and rhododendrons.
- How to apply soil amendments and fertilizer to improve soil quality.
- Nutrients that are lacking or in excess in the soil.
- Amount of lead or other metals in the soil.

For more information regarding the soil sampling program or process, please contact the Pendleton County Extension Office at 859-654-3395.

The Amish Cook

One Skillet Spaghetti

- 1 teaspoon dried oregano
- 1 teaspoons sugar
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1 1/4 cup brown sugar
- 1 cup shredded Cheddar cheese

DIRECTIONS:

In large skillet brown hamburger, onions, and drain. Stir in all other ingredients except for the cheese and bring to a boil. Reduce heat, cover and simmer for 30 minutes or until spaghetti is tender. Sprinkle with cheese, cover and heat until melted.
